Background information

Monitoring and evaluation (M&E) helps those involved with any type of projects to assess if the desired progress is being achieved. This creative course will help the key actors involved in project execution in the following ways: For project executors: By monitoring progress against defined goals, a project manager can assess what is working and what is not, and from there can determine what changes should be made to a project. This in turn makes it possible to improve the way things are being done in the project organization.
